

Your DiSC[®] Profile

Fanny Balestrat

Tuesday, June 07, 2022

This report is provided by:

Susan Gregory
Best Work Yet
www.bestworkyet.com

Catalyst.

In Your Report

FUNDAMENTALS

Your DiSC® StyleFN-1

WORKPLACE

What Drives YouWP-1

You and Other StylesWP-5

Build Better RelationshipsWP-10

PERSONALIZED STYLE INDEXPS-1

Your DiSC® Style

INTRODUCTION

Fanny, when you think of your best work experiences, what do they have in common? Maybe you had a familiarity with your team, where everyone just clicked. Coworkers considered the way you liked to communicate and collaborate. Things got done, and even conflicts ended up being productive. The environment empowered you to stretch in new ways.

DiSC® helps you transform these “best” work experiences into everyday work life. It does this by helping you understand yourself and others better, improve your relationships, and become more effective in the workplace.

To get you started, this section will introduce you to the DiSC model, your DiSC style, and the story your style reveals about you. With this foundation, you’ll be ready to explore how DiSC can help you grow and thrive across a variety of contexts.

YOU WILL LEARN

1. The basics of the DiSC model
2. Your DiSC style
3. What your style says about you

Fundamentals

CORNERSTONE PRINCIPLES

- All DiSC styles and priorities are equally valuable and everyone is a blend of all four styles.
- Your work style is also influenced by other factors such as life experiences, education, and maturity.

OVERVIEW OF THE DiSC® MODEL

Dominance

- Direct
- Firm
- Strong-willed
- Forceful
- Results-oriented

Conscientiousness

- Analytical
- Reserved
- Precise
- Private
- Systematic

Influence

- Outgoing
- Enthusiastic
- Optimistic
- High-spirited
- Lively

Steadiness

- Even-tempered
- Accommodating
- Patient
- Humble
- Tactful

Your DiSC® Overview

YOUR DOT

This report is personalized to you, Fanny, based on your assessment results. In order to get the most out of your experience, you'll need to understand your personalized DiSC® map, pictured to the right. As you saw on the previous page, the Everything DiSC® model is made up of four basic styles: D, i, S, and C. Each style is divided into three regions. The picture to the right illustrates the 12 different regions where a person's dot might be located.

Your dot location shows your DiSC style. Because your dot is located in the middle of the C region, you have a C style.

Keep in mind that everyone is a blend of all four styles, but most people tend strongly toward one or two styles. Whether your dot is in the center of one style or in a region that borders two, no dot location is better than another. All DiSC® styles are equal and valuable in their own ways.

Your DiSC® Style: C

People with the C style tend to be analytical, reserved, and focused on accuracy and quality.

CLOSE TO THE EDGE OR CLOSE TO THE CENTER

A dot's distance from the edge of the circle shows how naturally inclined a person is to encompass the characteristics of his or her DiSC style. A dot positioned toward the edge of the circle indicates a strong inclination toward the characteristics of the style. A dot located between the edge and the center of the circle indicates a moderate inclination. And a dot positioned close to the center of the circle indicates a slight inclination. A dot in the center of the circle is no better than one on the edge, and vice versa. Your dot location is near the edge of the circle, so you are strongly inclined and probably relate well to the characteristics associated with the C style.

Now that you know a little bit about the personalization of your DiSC Map, you'll learn more about what your dot location says about you. You'll also learn some basic information about the other DiSC styles.

Your C Style

YOUR DOT TELLS A STORY

Because you have a C style, Fanny, you probably take a logical, objective approach to your work to ensure accuracy. You tend to be quite systematic, and you may enjoy creating standards that help bring about efficient, high-quality outcomes. Because you like to maintain a sense of control and stability, you may become annoyed when people don't adhere to accepted rules and guidelines.

People with the C style tend to be quite cautious. Because you want to avoid mistakes, you usually take time to think things through before making choices. Consequently, it may be stressful for you to make a decision when the outcome is unpredictable or you don't have enough information. You may overanalyze a situation in hopes of gaining an unrealistic level of certainty.

Compared to most people, you may be particularly hard on yourself for being wrong. And although this may push you to be your best, it may also keep you from taking chances that could prove beneficial. Likewise, because you tend to place so much value on your knowledge, you may waste time beating yourself up when you make a mistake.

You may have a strong questioning side as well. Because you place a high value on reasoning and analysis, you're unlikely to accept new ideas or plans at face value. As a result, you may question ideas even after other people feel ready to move ahead, and they may see you as a roadblock to progress.

Even if you like having other people around, you probably prefer to work alone. This allows you to get absorbed in projects and do in-depth problem solving. You prize independence, preferring to figure things out for yourself rather than ask for help. This doesn't mean that you don't enjoy contributing to a team. In fact, you may appreciate the chance to give advice and share your expertise.

You're probably pretty private with personal information, unless you know someone really well. You may also be uncomfortable mingling with strangers at social events and find it difficult to enter casual situations where the rules are unclear. You tend to be particularly uncomfortable around people who show a lot of emotion. You may even feel embarrassed for people who express what seems like too much anger, sadness, or affection. You probably show a lot of self-control and hope others will as well. On the rare occasions that coworkers see your emotions, you may feel a sense of vulnerability.

Despite your mostly mild appearance, you may get annoyed when you think logic and facts are being ignored. Given the choice between starting a fight or giving in, you may appear, at least on the surface, to give in. However, you may find more subtle ways to show your anger or get your way. For instance, you may withhold information or slow down progress by digging in your heels.

Although you pride yourself on the quality of your work, you may shy away from public recognition. And assuming that others share this preference, it may not occur to you that your coworkers may want more open praise or compliments from you.

Fanny, like others with the C style, your most valuable contributions to the workplace may include your insistence on precision, your quiet diligence, and your ability to find practical solutions to complex problems. In fact, these are probably some of the qualities that others admire most about you.

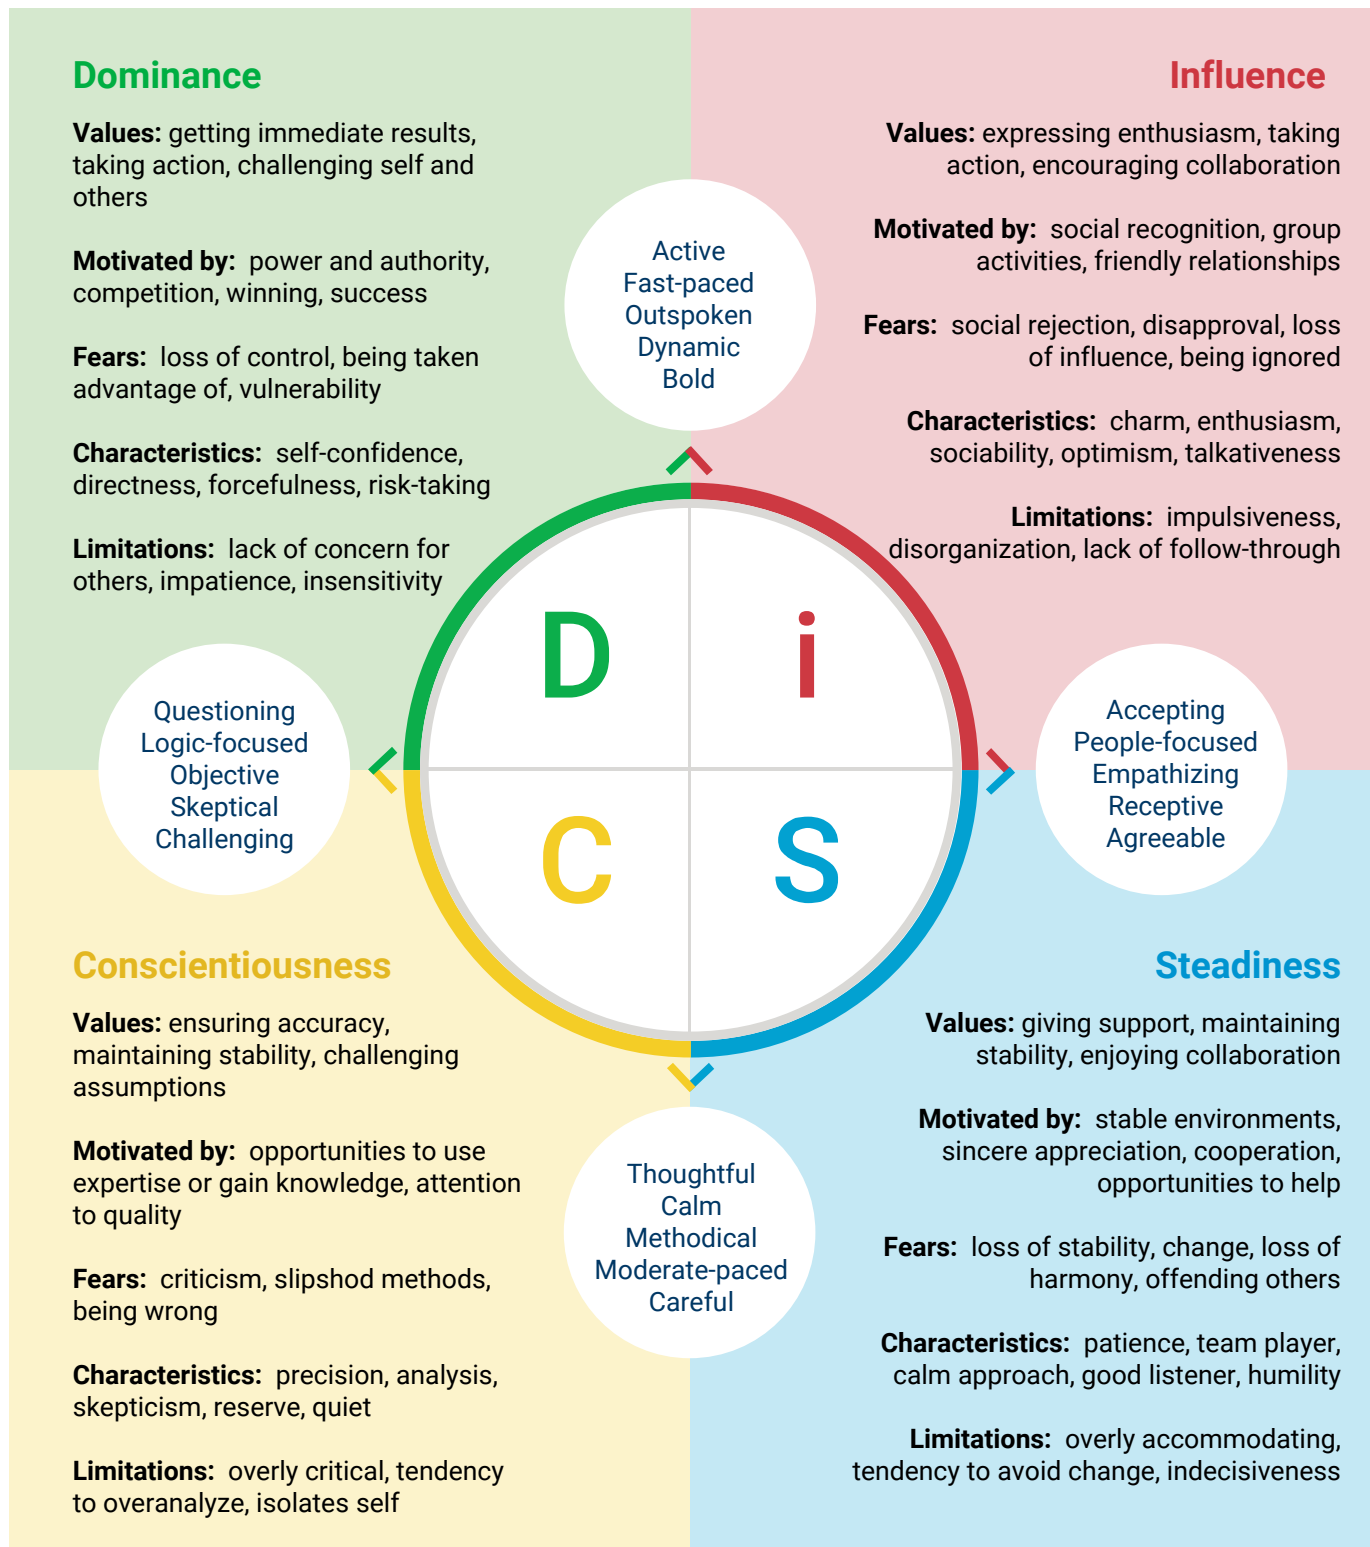

Your dot location determines your shading, which indicates your comfort zone. Activities associated with your comfort zone may come more naturally to you, while those outside may take more energy.

Overview of DiSC®

The graphic below provides a snapshot of the four basic DiSC® styles.

What Drives You

INTRODUCTION

Fanny, have you ever noticed that there are certain things you tend to focus on at work? Or that you're energized by some tasks but dread doing others?

We all bring different preferences and tendencies to the workplace. Some of us focus on making rapid progress. Others advocate for a more cautious approach. Some people seek out collaboration and interaction. Others prefer to go it alone.

In the pages that follow, you'll gain a deeper understanding of what you bring to the workplace. What do you care about? What motivates you? What frustrates you? Personalized strategies built on these insights will then help you increase your effectiveness and satisfaction at work.

YOU WILL LEARN

1. Your workplace priorities
2. Your workplace motivators
3. Your workplace stressors
4. Strategies to be more effective

Workplace

THE DiSC® MODEL

Your dot location and style are shown below, along with information on what people with different DiSC styles often value in the workplace.

Dominance

Cares about:

- Making quick progress
- Pushing through obstacles

Conscientiousness

Cares about:

- Getting things right
- Maintaining high standards

Influence

Cares about:

- Building strong relationships
- Being part of exciting new ventures

Steadiness

Cares about:

- Creating a harmonious environment
- Being a good teammate

Your DiSC[®] Style at Work

WORKPLACE PRIORITIES

The eight words around the Everything DiSC[®] map are what we call priorities, or the primary areas where people focus their energy in the workplace. Your shading shows your comfort zone and the priorities that tend to shape your workplace experience. The closer your comfort zone shading comes to a priority, the more likely you are to focus your energy on that area. Everyone has at least three priorities, and sometimes people have four or five. Having five priorities is no better than having three, and vice versa.

Typically, people with the C style have shading that touches Accuracy, Stability, and Challenge. Your shading is characteristic of the C style.

Ensuring Accuracy

Fanny, you're willing to do what it takes to get things right, and you refuse to settle for sloppy, subpar work. Therefore, you analyze things carefully and make logical decisions based on objective facts. You tend to be quite precise, and you probably devote ample attention to developing superior systems and methods. Overall, you focus on accuracy to ensure high-quality outcomes.

Maintaining Stability

People with the C style tend to be self-controlled and cautious. You prefer a predictable setting where chaos and uncertainty don't threaten the quality of your work. As a result, you dislike being pressured, and you're usually skeptical of risky ideas and quick decisions. You prefer a systematic environment, and you focus on maintaining stability to produce consistent results.

Offering Challenge

Like others with the C style, you tend to be logical and methodical. You often do in-depth analysis, and you're willing to point out problems and flaws. Furthermore, you're often skeptical of new ideas, and you'll question people's opinions if you're unconvinced. You're willing to challenge people to look at things more carefully in the interest of getting things right.

Motivators & Stressors

WHAT MOTIVATES YOU?

Different people find different aspects of their work motivating. Like other people with the C style, you probably prefer to work in a stable setting where your logic is recognized and high standards are rewarded. Most likely, you appreciate having the independence to get absorbed in analytical problem solving.

You probably enjoy many of the following aspects of your work:

- Creating efficient systems or procedures
- Catching errors or flaws in design
- Setting high standards
- Solving problems through logic
- Ensuring quality
- Providing in-depth analysis
- Emphasizing accuracy and precision
- Working independently
- Being an expert

WHAT IS STRESSFUL FOR YOU?

Then there are those aspects of your work that are stressful for you. Because you tend to focus on tasks and logic, you may find it draining when your job requires a lot of forced social interaction. In addition, you tend to set high standards for yourself, so it may be stressful for you when you feel you don't have the expertise to do a good job or when others seem to be questioning the quality of your work.

Many of the following aspects of your work may be stressful for you:

- Having little private time
- Making decisions without time for analysis
- Being wrong or unprepared
- Dealing with a chaotic environment
- Being forced to mingle with strangers
- Being forceful or insistent
- Working under time pressure
- Dealing with conflict
- Being around emotional or erratic people

Strategies for Effectiveness

Fanny, the three key strategies below can help you apply what you've learned about your style to becoming more effective at work and positively contributing to your organization's culture.

1 RECOGNIZE THE VALUE OF NETWORKING

You tend to be somewhat private, and as a result, you may fail to make important connections with people in your workplace. People who are expressive and outgoing may have an easier time networking. By opening up and making your emotions more available, you may be able to gain trustworthy allies who will help you achieve your goals in the organization.

- Consider how networking with others might lead to improved results for a project and stronger connections for you.
- Ask yourself whether you could be more expressive in certain situations, which could make it easier for others to connect with you.

2 SHOW MORE WILLINGNESS TO WORK AS PART OF A TEAM

Because you often like to use your own judgment and control your workflow, you may prefer to work independently. However, if people sense that you're closed off to teamwork, they're less likely to approach you for input and it may stifle the flow of ideas within your group. By showing more openness to collaboration, you can benefit from the talents of those around you.

- Invite people to share their opinions, and remember that asking for input is a sign of prudent decision-making.
- Focus on building a communication network that will help you make sound decisions and manage errors.

3 BE FIRM AND STAND YOUR GROUND

You may find it hard to take a firm stance when you feel you're being pressured to take a different direction. As you've probably discovered, a lot of people are willing to push their plans on someone who they think will give in. If you continually back off from your own ideas too easily, people might assume you're generally indifferent, and they may have less regard for your preferences in the future.

- Remind yourself that just because others are confident doesn't mean their ideas are better than yours.
- Consider the long-term consequences of letting your ideas be stifled.

You and Other Styles

INTRODUCTION

Fanny, have you ever wondered why you connect well with some people, but find it harder to relate to others?

DiSC® gives you insight into your relationships by helping you appreciate where others are coming from. In this section, you'll learn about the different DiSC styles, so you can see what you and your colleagues have in common and where you differ. You'll explore how others' priorities compare to yours, and what that means for your relationships.

Seeing these priorities for what they are—areas where work is most meaningful for each of us—creates opportunities to appreciate differences. This lays the groundwork for stronger relationships based on understanding and respect.

YOU WILL LEARN

1. The workplace priorities of other styles
2. How well you might relate to those priorities
3. Your similarities and differences

Workplace

DiSC® MODEL AND WORKPLACE PRIORITIES

The priorities around the circle show where the different styles focus their energy at work. Your dot and surrounding comfort zone (shading) are also shown. Typically, people with the C style have shading that touches Accuracy, Stability, and Challenge. Your shading is characteristic of the C style.

Dominance

You will notice:

- Driving toward results
- Taking quick and bold action
- Challenging things that aren't working

Conscientiousness

You will notice:

- Striving for accuracy and high quality
- Taking a systematic approach to ensure stability
- Challenging flawed ideas and approaches

Influence

You will notice:

- Maintaining enthusiasm
- Taking quick action toward exciting possibilities
- Collaborating and socializing

Steadiness

You will notice:

- Being supportive and patient with others
- Collaborating and cooperating
- Being dependable and even-tempered to ensure stability

The D Style & You

HOW MIGHT YOU REACT TO THE D STYLE?

Imagine that you regularly interact with someone with a D style. She's well-respected by the organization as a go-getter who delivers on her promises, but you may find her forceful approach to be overly aggressive. Also, because you prefer a calm, orderly environment, you may not appreciate when she pushes insistently for results.

To you, this colleague seems to thrive on rapid progress, often driving toward bold and radical change. Because you prefer a more careful and consistent work environment, this focus on action probably makes you somewhat nervous. In addition, you value accuracy and want things to be done systematically, so you may wonder why she always seems to rush to get things done, often with little regard for the details.

Furthermore, since you tend to share her questioning nature and her desire to challenge ideas, you probably appreciate the healthy sense of skepticism she brings to a situation. However, because you're more interested in accuracy and she's more focused on the bottom line, the two of you probably tend to pursue your goals independently, and you may butt heads when you're engaged in collaborative efforts.

To you, people with the D style may seem:

- Forceful
- Intense
- Demanding
- Impulsive

WHAT IS THE MOTIVATION FOR THEIR BEHAVIOR?

Results

People with the D style tend to be strong-willed individuals who prioritize Results. Because they are so driven, they constantly look for new challenges and opportunities. They strive for success and won't give up just because they run into a few obstacles. Though you're probably not as competitive as they are, you can probably relate to their desire to excel.

Action

In addition, they prioritize Action, so they focus on achieving their goals quickly and forcefully. Cautious and predictable environments are particularly tedious for them, and they may get impatient if others spend a lot of time analyzing ideas rather than acting on them. Since you probably prefer to slow down and analyze situations, you may not relate to their bold style.

Challenge

Furthermore, those with the D style also prioritize Challenge. Because they want to control outcomes, they're often questioning and independent-minded. They are unlikely to accept things they're unsure about, and they won't hesitate to challenge ideas that they don't agree with. While you also tend to ask a lot of questions, you may find their forceful approach to be a bit overpowering at times.

The i Style & You

HOW MIGHT YOU REACT TO THE i STYLE?

Now, imagine that you also work with someone with an i style. He seems to know everyone on a first-name basis and always has the latest scoop. You probably don't relate to his outward enthusiasm, and he may often seem overly optimistic to someone with your reserved nature.

You may notice that he seems to be drawn to fast action and enjoys initiating rapid change. Because you're more concerned with accuracy, his constantly on-the-go approach may seem haphazard to you. And since you prefer to work in a more structured, systematic environment, you may find his spontaneity and flexibility to be exhausting.

To you, he may seem overly concerned with being in the spotlight, and you may wonder how he gets any work done with all that socializing and joke telling. Since you like to work independently to ensure accuracy, you may not appreciate his push to collaborate.

To you, people with the i style may seem:

- Talkative
- Emotional
- Scattered
- Naïve

WHAT IS THE MOTIVATION FOR THEIR BEHAVIOR?

Enthusiasm

People with the i style put a high priority on Enthusiasm and tend to maintain an upbeat attitude. Because they get excited about new possibilities, they may be very expressive when communicating their ideas. Because you tend to respond to logic more than emotions, you may have trouble relating to their high-spirited style.

Action

In addition, they prioritize Action, so they focus on making quick progress toward exciting solutions. Because they tend to be fast-paced, they may be eager to get going without spending a lot of time considering the consequences. Since you value careful analysis, their spontaneity and tendency to choose adventurous ideas may strike you as reckless.

Collaboration

Furthermore, those with the i style also prioritize Collaboration. They enjoy meeting new people, and they probably have a talent for getting everyone involved and building team spirit. They appreciate teamwork and often gather the group to work on projects collaboratively. Since you tend to prefer working alone, you may find that their emphasis on teamwork sometimes puts you in uncomfortable situations.

The S Style & You

HOW MIGHT YOU REACT TO THE S STYLE?

Now, let's imagine that you regularly interact with someone with an S style. To you, he seems even-tempered and accommodating, and you're never afraid to ask him to pitch in because he's always patient and happy to help. However, because you tend to be skeptical of new ideas, you might have trouble understanding his tendency to support others without question.

Around the office he's often referred to as a "rock," and because you both tend to prefer caution and stability, you probably appreciate that he doesn't spring any wild ideas on you at the last minute. He is well-liked by everyone, and like you, he can always be counted on to perform his job consistently.

Since you both like to keep a low profile, you probably share his discomfort with public recognition. However, while you aren't afraid to question assumptions, he seems to be more concerned with trying to please everyone. As a result, you may wish he'd spend more time on analysis and less time worrying about others' feelings.

To you, people with the S style may seem:

- Uncritical
- Compliant
- Flexible
- Diplomatic

WHAT IS THE MOTIVATION FOR THEIR BEHAVIOR?

Support

People with the S style place a high priority on providing Support. They tend to be good listeners, and as a result, they're often seen as patient and accommodating. They don't hesitate to help out when they can, and they value a warm and easygoing environment. Because you tend to focus on logic more than people's feelings, you may not understand their emphasis on meeting others' needs.

Stability

In addition, they prioritize Stability, so they often focus on maintaining a predictable, orderly environment. Since they tend to be cautious, they're probably methodical and avoid rapid change whenever possible. Because you tend to analyze the risks before making decisions, you probably appreciate their caution and follow-through.

Collaboration

Furthermore, people with the S style also prioritize Collaboration. They enjoy working with others in a trusting, warm environment, and they may go out of their way to make sure people feel included and accepted. Because you're probably more comfortable working alone, you may find it hard to relate to their preference to emphasize group efforts.

The C Style & You

HOW MIGHT YOU REACT TO THE C STYLE?

Imagine that you regularly interact with someone who also has a C style and shares your priority of accuracy. Like you, she's not highly sociable, and you probably relate well to her dedication to getting things done right. She shares your desire for quality and precision, so she tends to hole up in her office for long stretches of time, checking her work two or three times before being satisfied.

Like you, this colleague wants a stable environment where she can do her best work. She seems methodical and dependable, and since she shares your sense of caution, you probably appreciate that she takes the time to evaluate big decisions. Also, because she likes to analyze risks, she's unlikely to push for the bold ideas or drastic changes that you prefer to avoid.

Furthermore, you share her tendency to challenge ideas. Neither of you will hesitate to point out an error or question what you think is a flaw. However, if the two of you have conflicting viewpoints, you may think she comes across as stubborn and unyielding. Still, you're likely to appreciate her tendency to follow through on commitments.

To you, people with the C style may seem:

- Logical
- Systematic
- Reliable
- Analytical

WHAT IS THE MOTIVATION FOR THEIR BEHAVIOR?

Accuracy

People with the C style place a high priority on Accuracy. Because they want to ensure superior results, they tend to analyze options rationally and separate emotions from facts. They value being precise, and as result, they will often ask in-depth or skeptical questions. Since you tend to share their detached, logical approach, you may relate to their emphasis on creating sound solutions.

Stability

In addition, they prioritize Stability. Because they tend to value follow-through and restraint, they're uncomfortable with quick or risky decisions and prefer to take time to make an informed choice. They tend to analyze all the options, and they often make decisions that promise predictable outcomes. Because you share their desire to ensure dependable outcomes, you probably find it easy to relate to their cautious approach.

Challenge

Furthermore, people with the C style also prioritize Challenge. In their quest to find the most streamlined or productive method of completing their tasks, they may openly question ideas and point out flaws that others may have missed. Since you share their tendency to question ideas, you may find it easy to relate to their skeptical approach.

Build Better Relationships

INTRODUCTION

While everyone wants good relationships in the workplace, we may disagree on what that really means. A first step is simply understanding what that looks like for each other—how do we want to be treated?

DiSC® helps you understand the various ways people approach communication and collaboration. In this section, you'll explore how to connect with your coworkers, based on strategies that take their style and priorities into consideration as well as your own.

With this information, you can meet your coworkers where they are, leading to smoother, more effective relationships and a work culture built on respect.

YOU WILL LEARN

1. How to be more effective with each DiSC style
2. How to solve problems when working with each DiSC style
3. How to manage tension with each DiSC style

Workplace

DiSC® MODEL AND WORKPLACE PRIORITIES

The priorities around the circle show where the different styles focus their energy at work. Your dot and surrounding comfort zone (shading) are also shown. Typically, people with the C style have shading that touches Accuracy, Stability, and Challenge. Your shading is characteristic of the C style.

D style responds well to:

- Directness
- Confidence
- Ability to get to the point quickly

C style responds well to:

- Facts and logic
- Calm and order
- Time and space to think things through

i style responds well to:

- Enthusiasm and excitement
- Positivity and optimism
- Warmth and openness

S style responds well to:

- Patience and calm
- Warmth and acceptance
- Diplomacy and consideration

Connecting with D

WHEN YOU NEED TO BE MORE EFFECTIVE:

Fanny, people with the D style like to get right to the point, and this might affect the way you relate to one another. They want things to happen quickly, so they don't want to spend time dwelling on specifics. You're more likely to be careful and systematic, taking the time to point out logical objections. As a result, you may find their blunt, forceful approach to be pushy or reckless, while they may see your persistent questions as a barrier to forward progress.

Therefore, when you need to be more effective with people who have the D style, consider the following strategies:

- Talk to them about the big picture and the bottom line, rather than getting caught up in the details.
- Show them that you can move more quickly when necessary.
- Voice your concerns, but avoid pointing out why every idea won't work.

WHEN PROBLEMS NEED TO BE SOLVED:

Compared to people with the D style, you're much more likely to take a cautious, analytical approach to problem solving. Because they tend to make quick, firm decisions and are willing to gamble on bold ideas that may seem too risky to you, they may grow impatient with your systematic consideration of all the potential problems. In turn, you may see their focus on immediate answers as rash or shortsighted.

Therefore, when solving problems with people who have the D style, consider the following strategies:

- Make them aware of potential issues, but avoid getting bogged down in analysis.
- Consider their ideas that might initially seem too bold or daring.
- Offer your own ideas rather than simply telling them what's wrong with their solutions.

WHEN THINGS GET TENSE:

Because you share your "D" coworkers' tendency to challenge ideas, you may be as willing as they are to confront problems. However, they may become frank and even argumentative in conflict, and because you dislike intense emotions, you may try to avoid them when things get heated. Since you prefer time to consider problems logically, it may make you uncomfortable when they push for quick resolution. As a result, you may withdraw, and while they may believe that the situation is resolved, your resentment may build.

Therefore, when things get tense with people who have the D style, consider the following strategies:

- Be aware that hiding your true feelings might cause the conflict to drag on or escalate.
- Communicate your points directly and objectively.
- Address concerns in a straightforward manner and avoid shutting down.

Connecting with i

WHEN YOU NEED TO BE MORE EFFECTIVE:

Because people with the i style often thrive in high-energy settings where they can work collaboratively, Fanny, they're probably quite a bit more expressive and outgoing than you tend to be. While you may emphasize logic and careful decision making, they prioritize enthusiasm and thrive on spontaneity. As a result, they may see the reserved, skeptical approach that is typical of the C style to be cold or closed off.

Therefore, when you need to be more effective with people who have the i style, consider the following strategies:

- Recognize the value of their energy and spontaneity.
- Focus on the positive and avoid appearing aloof.
- Join their collaborative efforts to show that you don't discount the benefits of teamwork.

WHEN PROBLEMS NEED TO BE SOLVED:

People with the i style rely heavily on intuition, and they like to dive in and act quickly when confronting a problem. For this reason, your tendency to analyze each option logically may strike them as tedious and a hindrance to progress. In turn, you may believe that their spontaneous approach leads to shoddy solutions or unforeseen consequences.

Therefore, when solving problems with people who have the i style, consider the following strategies:

- Be open to their more creative solutions, but help them see the potential consequences.
- Tap into their energy when the situation requires a quick resolution.
- Refrain from overanalyzing ideas, or they may see you as perfectionistic or inflexible.

WHEN THINGS GET TENSE:

Because people with the i style want to maintain friendly relationships, they may share your tendency to avoid conflict, at least initially. However, they're so focused on being heard that when situations become heated, they may insist on expressing their emotions, even if it means lashing out. In contrast, you dislike emotionally-charged situations and tend to withdraw or try to overpower people with logic when confronted. As a result, they may see you as uninterested in their side of the story.

Therefore, when things get tense with people who have the i style, consider the following strategies:

- Address conflict directly rather than withdrawing from emotionally-charged situations.
- Suggest logical ways to resolve the conflict, but avoid coming across as overly detached.
- Reassure them that a disagreement now doesn't mean a poor relationship down the road.

Connecting with S

WHEN YOU NEED TO BE MORE EFFECTIVE:

People with the S style value cooperation and friendly interaction, Fanny, and this might affect the way you relate to one another. You're probably much less interested in collaborating than they are, and they may have a difficult time understanding your more objective, reserved manner. Furthermore, they enjoy warm relationships and want everyone to feel included, so they may mistake your somewhat silent, detached approach for disapproval or dislike.

Therefore, when you need to be more effective with people who have the S style, consider the following strategies:

- Gain their trust by showing interest in their ideas and opinions.
- Remember that you may have to ask a few times before they'll tell you what's really bothering them.
- Avoid appearing too aloof, since they may take it personally.

WHEN PROBLEMS NEED TO BE SOLVED:

Since you like to think decisions through carefully and systematically, you probably share the tendency of people with the S style to hesitate before taking a stand. This is probably especially true when you're facing rapid, unpredictable change, and your inclination to overanalyze options may further contribute to situations going unresolved. In addition, both of you may refuse to consider untested ideas in your decision-making process, and this could prevent growth and innovation.

Therefore, when solving problems with people who have the S style, consider the following strategies:

- Establish a deadline for coming to a solution, and find ways to make minor decisions more quickly together.
- Consider risks and feasibility, but remember that more adventurous ideas sometimes lead to better results.
- Contribute your objective viewpoint, but try not to dwell on everything that could go wrong.

WHEN THINGS GET TENSE:

Because people with the S style want to support others, they avoid rocking the boat and upsetting the people around them. You dislike emotional outbursts, so the two of you may sweep conflict and tension under the rug. While this probably minimizes the chances of open hostility, it can also allow bad feelings to build. At the same time, your more detached response to conflict may strike them as cold or impersonal.

Therefore, when things get tense with people who have the S style, consider the following strategies:

- Address problems directly and objectively, but avoid an overly logical or withdrawn approach.
- Show openness to their opinions and feelings.
- Avoid dismissing the conflict unless you're sure that it's resolved.

Connecting with C

WHEN YOU NEED TO BE MORE EFFECTIVE:

Fanny, people who share your C style would often rather focus on facts than feelings, and this might affect the way you relate to one another. They probably appreciate that you also tend to stay on task and leave personal matters out of the discussion. Furthermore, because you both focus on logic more than relationships and neither of you is likely to push for more openness, communication between you will probably be more restricted and polite.

Therefore, when you need to be more effective with people who have the C style, consider the following strategies:

- Focus on your shared need for objectivity, but try not to relate everything to tasks and logic.
- Allow time to get to know each other better to avoid misunderstandings.
- Respect your shared preference to work independently, but remain open to collaborative projects.

WHEN PROBLEMS NEED TO BE SOLVED:

When it comes to solving problems, you and those who share your C style tend to thoroughly consider all the consequences before making a decision. And, because you're both prone to overanalyzing things, you may spend a lot of time second-guessing plans. Furthermore, the two of you tend to be fairly determined that your way is the right way, so you may struggle to remain open to different approaches and ideas in the problem-solving process.

Therefore, when solving problems with people who have the C style, consider the following strategies:

- Set a timeline for finding a solution to avoid getting bogged down in analysis.
- Focus on finding a mutually acceptable solution rather than getting into logic battles when you disagree on the correct approach.
- Avoid working so independently that you fail to communicate.

WHEN THINGS GET TENSE:

Because people who share your C style often view conflict as a disagreement over who is correct, they usually avoid direct aggression and focus on challenging the reasoning behind an argument. Like you, they tend to withdraw from emotionally-charged situations. And, because you share their objective approach, the two of you may engage in logic wars. As a result, disagreements between you may fail to be resolved in a timely way.

Therefore, when things get tense with people who have the C style, consider the following strategies:

- Focus on resolving the conflict respectfully and thoroughly rather than on proving you're right.
- Refrain from getting caught up in arguments over whose position is more logical.
- Avoid pulling back from the argument before it's clearly resolved since they're also likely to withdraw.

Personalized Style Index

DC STYLE

Goals: Independence, personal accomplishment

Judges others by: Competence, common sense

Influences others by: High standards, determination

Overuses: Bluntness; sarcastic or condescending attitude

Under pressure: Becomes overly critical

Fears: Failure to achieve their standards

Would increase effectiveness through: Warmth, tactful communication

Fanny, people with the DC style want to explore all options and make sure that the best possible methods are used. As a result, they may be very questioning and skeptical of other people's ideas. This may be easy for you to relate to since you aren't afraid to challenge opinions and ask questions.

In addition, they're also focused on getting results, so they're often very direct and straightforward. When they're concentrating on the bottom line, they may overlook the feelings of others. You may have trouble relating to what you see as an excessive drive for results.

Finally, those with the DC style also ensure accuracy. Because they want to control the quality of their work, they prefer to work independently, and they may focus on separating emotions from facts. Since you also like to maintain high standards, you can probably relate to their objective, analytical approach.

D STYLE

Goals: Bottom-line results, victory

Judges others by: Ability to achieve results

Influences others by: Assertiveness, insistence, competition

Overuses: The need to win, resulting in win/lose situations

Under pressure: Becomes impatient and demanding

Fears: Being taken advantage of, appearing weak

Would increase effectiveness through: Patience, empathy

People with the D style are strong-willed individuals who prioritize getting results. Because they want to make their mark, they constantly look for new challenges and opportunities. Though you're probably not as competitive as they are, you can probably relate to their desire to excel.

In addition, they also tend to be action-oriented, so they often focus on achieving their goals quickly and forcefully. Since they are often very fast-paced, they like it when people cut to the chase. Since you probably prefer to slow down and analyze situations, you may not relate to their bold style.

Furthermore, those with the D style also speak up when they see a problem. Because they want to control outcomes, they're often questioning and independent-minded. While you also tend to ask a lot of questions, you may find their forceful approach to be a bit overpowering at times.

Di STYLE

Goals: Quick action, new opportunities

Judges others by: Confidence, influence

Influences others by: Charm, bold action

Overuses: Impatience, egotism, manipulation

Under pressure: Becomes aggressive, overpowers others

Fears: Loss of power

Would increase effectiveness through: Patience, humility, consideration of others' ideas

People with the Di style move at a fast pace, and they probably come across as adventurous and bold. Because they grow bored easily, these individuals often seek out unique assignments and leadership positions. You prefer to keep a steadier pace, so you may not relate well to their energetic approach.

In addition, they're focused on getting results, so they often work to accomplish their goals rapidly. While they are competitive, they can also use charm to persuade others to help them succeed. You may think they are too focused on results.

Finally, those with the Di style tend to be energetic and enthusiastic, so they may come across as charming and fun. They probably use their excitement to inspire others and to create a lively environment. You may have trouble relating to their high-spirited approach.

iD STYLE

Goals: Exciting breakthroughs

Judges others by: Ability to think creatively, charisma

Influences others by: Boldness, passion

Overuses: Impulsiveness, outspokenness

Under pressure: Becomes impulsive, lashes out at others

Fears: Fixed environments, loss of approval or attention

Would increase effectiveness through: Focusing on the details, patience, listening to others

Fanny, people with the iD style value taking action, so they tend to focus on moving toward their goals quickly. They like to maintain a fast pace, and they're probably comfortable making decisions on the fly. You may have a difficult time keeping up with their rapid pace.

In addition, they tend to be enthusiastic, and they may come across as high-energy people who like to rally others around a common goal. Most likely, they maintain an upbeat attitude and bring a genuine optimism to their work. You may think their high level of enthusiasm is a bit distracting.

Furthermore, those with the iD style focus on getting results, so they may come across as ambitious and goal-oriented. Most likely, they enjoy leveraging relationships to achieve new accomplishments. To you, it may seem that their quest for results overlooks other important factors.

i STYLE

Goals: Popularity, approval, excitement

Judges others by: Openness, social skills, enthusiasm

Influences others by: Charm, optimism, energy

Overuses: Optimism, praise

Under pressure: Becomes disorganized, gets overly expressive

Fears: Rejection, not being heard

Would increase effectiveness through: Being more objective, following through on tasks

People with the i style put a high priority on enthusiasm and tend to maintain an upbeat attitude. They get excited about new possibilities, and they may be very expressive when communicating their ideas. Because you tend to respond to logic more than emotions, you may have trouble relating to their high-spirited style.

In addition, they are action-oriented, so they often focus on making quick progress toward exciting solutions. Since they tend to be fast-paced, they may be eager to get going without spending a lot of time considering the consequences. Since you value careful analysis, their spontaneity and tendency to choose adventurous ideas may strike you as reckless.

Furthermore, those with the i style also appreciate collaboration. They usually enjoy meeting new people, and they may have a talent for getting everyone involved and building team spirit. Since you tend to prefer working alone, you may find that their emphasis on teamwork sometimes puts you in uncomfortable situations.

iS STYLE

Goals: Friendship

Judges others by: Ability to see good in others, warmth

Influences others by: Agreeableness, empathy

Overuses: Patience with others, indirect approaches

Under pressure: Takes criticism personally, avoids conflict

Fears: Pressuring others, being disliked

Would increase effectiveness through: Acknowledging others' flaws, confronting problems

People with the iS style value collaboration, so they enjoy teaming up with others as much as possible. Because they want everyone to feel included, they tend to spend time and energy getting people involved. Since you appreciate opportunities to work independently, you may not relate to their emphasis on team efforts.

In addition, they tend to be enthusiastic, and they're likely to bring a positive attitude to their work and relationships. They're light-hearted and encouraging, and they often like to spread their optimistic spirit to others. You tend to be less expressive than they are, and you may have trouble relating to their happy-go-lucky approach.

Furthermore, those with the iS style tend to be flexible people who want what's best for the group. When others struggle, they tend to show concern and offer uncritical support. You may think their accepting approach is too softhearted.

Si STYLE

Goals: Acceptance, close relationships

Judges others by: Receptivity to others, approachability

Influences others by: Showing empathy, being patient

Overuses: Kindness, personal connections

Under pressure: Avoids conflict, tries to make everyone happy

Fears: Being forced to pressure others, facing aggression

Would increase effectiveness through: Saying “no” if necessary, addressing issues

Fanny, people with the Si style are highly collaborative, and they like to involve others in making decisions. Most likely, they try to build team spirit and are less concerned with individual accomplishment. Because you tend to prefer working alone, you may have trouble understanding their strong interest in group efforts.

In addition, they're also supportive, so they tend to place a high importance on the needs of others. Because they have an accommodating nature, they're often willing to set aside their own opinions and needs to help others. You may have trouble relating to their accepting approach, which may sometimes seem counterproductive to you.

Furthermore, those with the Si style usually come across as cheerful and upbeat. They tend to see the positive in most situations, and they're encouraging of other people's ideas. Most likely, you have trouble relating to their expressive style.

S STYLE

Goals: Harmony, stability

Judges others by: Dependability, sincerity

Influences others by: Accommodating others, consistent performance

Overuses: Modesty, passive resistance, compromise

Under pressure: Gives in, avoids revealing true opinions

Fears: Letting people down, rapid change

Would increase effectiveness through: Displaying self-confidence, revealing true feelings

People with the S style place a high value on providing support. They tend to be good listeners, and as a result they're often seen as patient and accommodating. Because you tend to focus on logic more than people's feelings, you may not understand their emphasis on meeting others' needs.

In addition, they often focus on maintaining a predictable, orderly environment. Since they tend to be cautious, they may use a methodical pace and avoid rapid change whenever possible. Because you tend to analyze the risks before making decisions, you probably appreciate their caution and follow-through.

Furthermore, people with the S style also value collaboration. Because they appreciate a trusting, warm environment, they may go out of their way to make sure people feel included and accepted. Because you're probably more comfortable working alone, you may find it hard to relate to their preference to emphasize group efforts.

SC STYLE

Goals: Calm environment, fixed objectives, steady progress

Judges others by: Reliability, realistic outlook, even temperament

Influences others by: Diplomacy, self-control, consistency

Overuses: Willingness to let others lead, humility

Under pressure: Becomes inflexible, hinders spontaneity, complies

Fears: Time pressure, uncertainty, chaos

Would increase effectiveness through: Initiating change, speaking up

People with the SC style place a high priority on stability and attaining consistent outcomes. Because they tend to be cautious, they may prefer to work in a predictable environment that won't bring a lot of surprises. Since you share their desire for stability, you can probably appreciate their careful, methodical approach.

In addition, they're supportive, so they tend to be accommodating and willing to forfeit their own needs and preferences when necessary. They're usually patient and diplomatic, and they aren't likely to become overly emotional when pushed. You may have trouble relating to their patient, obliging approach.

Furthermore, those with the SC style focus on accuracy. They tend to work systematically to produce quality work and effective solutions, and they may be fairly analytical at times. You probably relate well to their interest in producing solid, error-free work.

CS STYLE

Goals: Stability, reliable outcomes

Judges others by: Precise standards, orderly methods

Influences others by: Practicality, attention to detail

Overuses: Traditional methods, sense of caution

Under pressure: Withdraws, becomes hesitant

Fears: Emotionally charged situations, ambiguity

Would increase effectiveness through: Showing flexibility, being decisive, showing urgency

Fanny, people with the CS style value stability, so they probably come across as orderly and precise. Since they prefer to be well-prepared, they tend to avoid taking risks or making rapid changes. Because you share their interest in a stable environment, you may appreciate their tendency to focus on steady progress.

In addition, they also place a high priority on accuracy, so they tend to spend time refining their ideas before moving forward. Most likely, they rely on data before making decisions and tend to take an objective approach. Because you share their tendency to value accurate outcomes, you may appreciate their careful, methodical approach.

Furthermore, those with the CS style are usually ready and willing to help when their expertise is needed. They also tend to be even-tempered and patient with both people and difficult situations. You might find it difficult to relate to their accommodating approach.

C STYLE

Goals: Accuracy, objective processes

Judges others by: Expertise, systematic processes

Influences others by: Logic, exacting standards

Overuses: Analysis, restraint

Under pressure: Overwhelms others with logic, becomes rigid

Fears: Being wrong, strong displays of emotion

Would increase effectiveness through: Acknowledging others' feelings, looking beyond data

People with the C style focus on accuracy and getting things right. Because they want to ensure superior results, they tend to analyze options rationally and separate emotions from facts. Since you tend to share their detached, logical approach, you may relate to their emphasis on creating sound solutions.

In addition, they also value stability. Since they tend to appreciate follow-through and restraint, they're uncomfortable with quick or risky decisions and prefer to take time to make an informed choice. Because you share their desire to ensure dependable outcomes, you probably find it easy to relate to their cautious approach.

Furthermore, people with the C style are attentive to uncovering problems and mistakes. In their quest to find the most streamlined or productive method of completing their tasks, they may openly question ideas and point out flaws that others may have missed. Since you share their tendency to question ideas, you may find it easy to relate to their skeptical approach.

CD STYLE

Goals: Efficient results, rational decisions

Judges others by: Competence, use of logic

Influences others by: Strict standards, resolute approach

Overuses: Bluntness, critical attitude

Under pressure: Ignores people's feelings, moves ahead independently

Fears: Failure, lack of control

Would increase effectiveness through: Cooperation, paying attention to others' needs

People with the CD style may come across as skeptical and determined in their focus on making sure things get done correctly. Most likely, they won't accept ideas without asking a lot of questions, and they like to uncover problems that could affect results. You share their tendency to question new ideas, so you may find it easy to relate to their challenging approach.

In addition, they also prioritize accuracy, and they focus on thinking logically to create the best solutions. They tend to avoid letting their emotions get in the way of making rational decisions. Because you share their analytical approach, you may find it easy to relate to their emphasis on objectivity and logic.

Furthermore, those with the CD style also value getting results and tend to be determined to deliver quality outcomes efficiently. Most likely, they're also willing to take charge of projects when necessary, and they can usually be counted on to keep things on track. Their determination to get results may seem stubborn or impatient to you at times.